

Documentation

In Namibia, all foreign hunters must hunt with a registered professional hunter, who in turn must either be registered as, or be in the employ of, a hunting outfitter.

On completion of the hunt, the professional hunter will complete the hunting register, detailing all species hunted. This is then signed by the professional hunter /hunting outfitter and you, the client. The original completed hunting register is then sent to the Department of Nature Conservation for the issuing of all the necessary conservation export permits.

If Cites animals are included in your hunt, with all documentation in place, the Namibian conservation authorities will issue the necessary Cites export permits. Certain Cites animals will require a Cites import permit. It is advisable that you obtain the correct information from your local fish and wildlife or conservation authority regarding the correct procedures on import Cites permits. This is to avoid any confusion and disappointments. With conservation, health and veterinary export documentation in place, the crate gets handed over to the shipping agent. The shipping agent will arrange for customs declaration and clearance, for dispatch to your shipping destination.
